Business Coalition Applauds House Passage of Dodd-Frank End-User Derivatives Fix

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Coalition for Derivatives End-Users issued the following statement responding to House passage of H.R. 5471 – legislation to exempt end-users involved in affiliate transactions from clearing requirements:

“The House today approved a bipartisan, commonsense change to the Dodd-Frank Act that would give some relief to end-user companies. The revisions included in this bill prevent businesses from having to change the way they manage business risks, or pay more to do so. Financial regulation doesn’t always make sense for non-financial companies, and this bill illustrates that point. We thank all House members who voted to make sure the end-user clearing exemption works for American companies, but especially the bill’s sponsors, Representatives Moore, Stivers, Gibson and Fudge, for their hard work in sending this legislation to the Senate.”

The Coalition for Derivatives End-Users represents the views of companies that employ derivatives primarily to manage risks associated with their businesses. More than 270 companies and business associations have joined the Coalition in seeking strong, effective and fair regulation of derivatives markets that brings transparency and mitigates the risk of another systemic collapse while not unduly burdening American businesses and harming job growth.
